

Greenbrier River Trail

THE GREENBRIER RIVER TRAIL is a 78-mile long rail trail operated by the West Virginia state park system. Trail uses include bicycling, backpacking, cross-country skiing and horseback riding. A packed, crusher-run surface coupled with a mere one percent grade creates an ease of riding that allows cyclists, young and old, to enjoy the many breathtaking views. The trail closely mirrors its namesake, the Greenbrier River, for most of its length, offering trail users countless opportunities for swimming and fishing.

The Greenbrier River Trail traverses some of the most remote areas in the state and lies adjacent to the Monongahela National Forest, Seneca State Forest and Watoga State Park for most of its length, lending to very little development and a true "wild and wonderful" experience.

MULTIPLE-USE TRAIL GUIDELINES

- Motor vehicles – except authorized patrol vehicles – are not permitted on the trail.
- Warning: Travel at your own risk.
- Bridges and tunnels may be hazardous.
- Litter request: Pack it in – Pack it out.
- Be considerate of adjacent private land owners.
- Stay on trail.
- When parking, do not block trail access or private drives.
- Camping is permitted only in designated areas.
- Trail conditions vary.

Bicyclists

- North to south biking is easier.
- Fat tire bicycles are easier to ride.
- Carry a tire repair kit.
- Always yield trail.
- Never scare animals.

Equestrians

- Control your horse.
- Yield right-of-way to patrol vehicles.
- Always lead horse over bridges and through tunnels. A small flashlight may be useful in tunnels.
- Avoid cross-country riding. Greenbrier River Trail property is very narrow, so please respect private property.
- Do not canter horses.
- For health reasons, horses are not permitted within campsites or near eating or sleeping areas. Designated horse camping areas have hitching rails between trail and campsites.
- Tether horse to hitching rail or use a picket line between trees.
- Straw and hay are not permitted in campsites.
- Call ahead to make arrangements for wide loads, such as wagons.

Hikers

- Allow equestrians and bicyclists to pass.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q What does the “W” on concrete posts represent?

A Whistle posts were once used to signal engineer to “Blow the Whistle” because of an upcoming vehicle crossing. Now used by bicycling youngsters as a cue to “whistle.”

Q Is tent camping allowed anywhere along the trail?

A Camping is only permitted at designated camp areas. Eleven rustic camping areas are available; see trail map for locations.

Q What is the most scenic section of trail?

A The trail is beautiful its entire length, but Marlinton to Cass is scenic with little development and is close to the river. Beard to Droop Tunnel (Rorer) is also very scenic with almost no private land or development along the way.

Q What type of trail surface is on the GRT?

A The trail currently uses ¼” limestone crusher run with a few areas of ¾” limestone still existing.

Q Are motorized wheelchairs permitted on GRT?

A Yes, electric-powered chairs and scooters are permitted for disabled use only.

Q Are hunting firearms allowed on the trail?

A Yes, during legal open hunting season only. No uncased firearms are allowed otherwise.

Q What is the elevation above sea level?

A Caldwell (Milepost 3) – 1,698 feet and Cass trailhead (Milepost 80) – 2,430 feet. The trail drops about 220 feet in elevation from the northern terminus to the southern terminus.

Q What lodging facilities are located near the trail?

A State Park cabins and privately owned overnight facilities are nearby or along the trail. These are noted on listings and map. NOTE: Convention and Visitor Bureaus welcome your questions about area attractions and accommodations.
